Knife Sale

Damascus Knives - a higher level of artistry.

The reputation and history of Damascus steel has given rise to many legends, such as the ability to cut through a rifle barrel, or cut a hair falling across the blade. No evidence exists to support such claims, but you can judge the quality first hand when you order.

18th Century Linen Hunting Shirts

Often called a "Common Shirt", this style was prevalent from around 1760 throughout the early 1800s. Our shirts are made from a 60/40 linen cotton blend and have all the characteristics of the originals. Both styles are fully gusseted, pleated at the sleeves and plenty long for wear with a belt. Designed from drawings of a period example found in The Frontier Rifleman, by Richard B. LaCrosse, Jr.

The Rifleman's Pullover Hunting Shirt

It is a light, natural color and features a narrow collar with button and loop closure, pleated sleeves and cuffs with a single button. The neck opening terminates in a decorative, heart appliqué.

Missouri River Handbags

Made from top quality cowhide, each bag is eye-catching whether your attending a powwow or spending a night out on the town. Two of our styles have hair-on cowhide flaps that are reminiscent of early buck flap hunting bags. Our tapestry bag is made of heavy upholstery fabric to give a stylish version of the mid-19th century carper bags. Finally, our shopper bag has an embroidery pattern to pay homage to the great quillwork bags of the early 20th century. All bags are badged with a full leather Missouri River brand.

Fringed Medicine Bags

Small bags like these were traditionally used by Native Americans for carrying various items of spiritual power that constituted their personal medicine. Especially favored by shamans or medicine people, they were also carried by anyone who had obtained such special power.

These are our most popular, small leather bags, available in two sizes both with or without hand cut leather fringe. Made from our select, double sueded leather in natural, earthtone colors. They feature a long, soft thong for closure so that they can be worn around your neck or stowed in your possible bag or poke. Great for any small accouterments as well, such as round balls, flints, cleaning jags and more.

Trade Beads NEW STYLES!

Due to the popularity of our earlier trade bead offerings, we are now offering a much wider selection. If you are working on 'period correct' outfits, you will find our trade bead selection an important and affordable craft resource. Of course, you can also collect and display them, or use them in contemporary bead projects. Crazy Crow Trading Post's reproduction Trade Beads are the result of extensive research so that we could recreate historically accurate designs from the 17th- 19th centuries. These beads are extremely well done and often difficult to distinguish from original beads, many of which are rare and expensive.

Beads come unstrung. Image shows approximate size.

HAIRPIPE SALE!

Originally produced by Native Americans from the columns of marine Conch shells, early forms of elongated beads have long been in use in North America. They were gradually replaced by glass, brass and silver until Eastern wampum manufacturers began producing shell hairpipe from the West Indian conch sometime in the late 1700s. Carried by the Lewis & Clark Expedition, the Northwest Company and Auguste Chouteau as trade goods, both bone and shell hairpipe are mentioned in American Fur Company records from the 1840s. Beginning around 1880 they began to be produced commercially and have been available ever since. Our Hairpipes are produced to our specifications from genuine bone in traditional barrel shape and are uniform in both size and quality.

Bleached Goat Rawhide

Our goat rawhides are a light natural “bleached” color and average 1-2 oz in thickness. Ideal for lightweight projects such as women’s drum heads, lamp shade covers, quiver liners, black powder use, and rattle lacing. There are also certain projects where these hides could be a cheaper substitute for deer rawhide. We offer these rawhides in two general size ranges.

Hardwood Drum Frames

Each of these frames is completely handmade in the traditional manner from a single piece of select hardwood rather than being laminated like our regular frames. The smaller sizes, range in depth from approximately 1-5/8” to 2” and the larger diameter frames run approximately 2-1/2” to 3” in depth. These are well-made, sturdy frames that make excellent hand drums!!
