Steel Mistress Throwing Knife

Renowned knife throwing expert, Harry McEvoy, designed this knife especially for throwing. It features a superbly balanced, Bowie-style blade with strap leather grips secured with heavy screws for easy replacement. 14" overall length and includes a hand-laced, leather sheath.

4926-004-001 Reg. $42.00 $35.70 Ea

Seneca Lite Throwing Knife with Sheath

This popular, lighter weight version of our heavy Seneca throwing knife is well made with a solid steel blade that is 13" long and 3/16" thick. The heavy leather handles are easily replaceable, attached with 3 steel screws. A well balanced, imported throwing knife that is an excellent value. Includes sheath. Imported.

KNIVES!

These knives are very well made, sturdy, and made from high quality materials. All handles are constructed from India Stag, which is the best stag for knives due to its solid center composition (less porous than domestic deer). Damascus metals used for forging these knives are 1095 & 15N20. Knife styles that do not have a Damascus blade are forged from J2 German Stainless Steel. Every knife comes equipped with its own pre-fitted leather sheath. Very competitively priced especially when compared to knives much lower in quality. Take advantage of this great offer.

**Note: Overall lengths may vary slightly depending on shape and curve of stag handle.*

Crooked Knife

First introduced in Sheffield, England, crooked knives were sold by traders such as the Northwest Company as early as 1720. Used in carving items ranging from bowls and spoons to canoes and totem poles. Many were originally made from old files, with the tang inserted into a carved wooden handle and secured with tightly wrapped sinew or wire, rivets or pins. Our popular crooked knife is specially produced for both the Indian & Buckskinner trade just like the old days, and features fancy, carved hardwood handle with pewter bolsters and brass pins. Overall length is approximately 9".

Mini Spanish Belduque with Sheath

Popular in the Southwest, Belduques were traded at places like Taos & Bent's Fort and are extremely versatile knives for use in camp & on the trail.

Recreated from an original in the Museum of the Fur Trade, ours have an integral bolster (guard) and horn grips pinned with iron rivets. 7-1/4" overall with a 4" blade, just right for a small belt or utility knife.

Cherokee Bowie Knife ca. 1830

One of the earliest Bowies, this popular style appears in some of the premier collections as well as in early paintings, including that of the famous Cherokee chief, "Tah-Chee", where it is prominently shown. The heavy, 8 1/2" blade is a full 3/16" thick with nice hardwood slab grips featuring a German silver inlaid plate, pins and wrapped pommel.

Originally produced by Gravelly & Weeks in Sheffield, England in this massive, 14 1/4" overall length. The ornately fringed leather scabbard is patterned after the original.

Trapper's Camp Knife with Sheath

Typical of the camp knives favored in the West in the days of the mountain man, this style was made and exported in great numbers by the shops of Sheffield, England during the first half of the 19th century. Made to order for the hunter or cook, this heavy-duty knife was a staple in the inventories of the fur companies. At 13-1/2" overall length, with wood handle and brass guard, this working beauty comes with a hand laced, incised decorated leather sheath.

Missouri Belt Knife with Sheath

This attractive knife features a straight brass guard with collar and dark hardwood grips decoratively attached using 2 large and 5 small brass pins.

The 6-3/4" spearpoint blade is a versatile style popular in the early to mid 1800's and ours are patterned after an original museum example. Overall length is 11", complete with brown leather sheath featuring period correct "snapper" belt hook which holds it in place.

Cross L Trade Scalper with Sheath

Our new scalper features a hand forged, 7" tapered half tang blade, stamped with the authentic "Cross-L" logo. Listed in Northwest Company shipping records, these were often referred to as "red handled knives". Ours has a one piece handle of genuine wood in natural reddish color, hexagonal in shape and tapered. The handle is held in place with two iron pins and the knife comes complete with a genuine leather sheath. Overall length is 11-1/2".

Stroud Cloth

Ours stroud cloth is hand-dyed from 100% wool and has the characteristic saw tooth edges. This saw tooth pattern is achieved by "saving" the edges so that the dye cannot penetrate the wool. This cloth is highly desirable for early style blankets and garments. Approximate width is 55-56". Since this fabric is hand-dyed, there may be some small areas of inconsistent color. Note: Our Stroud cloth is dyed in 10 meter sections so if you order more than this amount, it will be in two pieces. Replace *** with desired color.

Muslin lining

Heavy Canvas 18th Century Haversacks

Commonly used by both civilians and soldiers through most of the 18th and early 19th century, our canvas haversacks can be used with either colonial or early fur trade reenactments. Made from sturdy canvas and offered in a few sizes and styles. All styles have a nice muslin inner lining. This lining is held in by corner buttons. This allows the liner to be easily removed if desired. Our "tarred" haversack is not done by the conventional process. This tarring has three layers: a waterproof binder, pigment layer, and a lacquer. These layers are hydraulically pressed into canvas to give it the same look and function as old time tarred haversacks.

Gentleman's Straight Razor

This old-time straight razor is bargain priced and an authentic way to stay clean-shaven at Rendezvous. In addition to shaving (records show that most Mountain Men shaved), straight razors were often used to make patch knives. Simply add an antler or wood handle to the high quality steel blade and you'll have both a razor AND a new patch knife! The blade is 3" long plus tang, and the razor measures 6" overall when closed. Handle colors are assorted.

Bison Splits

Bison leather is a preferred leather for a wide array of native craft items, but many times the heavy weight and nature of this leather does not make it possible. We now offer a bison split that eliminates this problem. Split down to a weight averaging around 3-1/2 oz, these hides are a nice color at an unbelievable price. Hide size ranges from 5-8 SF. Perfect for moccasins, bags and small garments.

B Ring Brooches

A form of washer brooch, ring brooches were a popular trade item among the Northeastern and Prairie tribes as early as the 1700s when trade silver was introduced. Later, Indian silversmiths copied these when they began using German silver, so we are offering them in both sterling silver and German silver. Excellent for use in decorating blouses, shirts, blankets, skirts, capotes, etc.
